Local High School Is Well
Ahead In Adopting
New Curriculum

THREE NEW TEACHERS

Newmarket high school is ahead of most high schools in making curriculum changes required this year.

For instance, the local high school dropped Latin in the first form last year. Other schools are following suit this year.

For instance, the new curriculum requires the teaching of music and art. Newmarket has been teaching singing for the last two or three years, whereas most high schools are starting only now.

"The only form affected by the new course of study this year is the first form," Principal J. B. Basto said. "The chief change is that Latin is not taught in the first form. We started that last year. Grammar as a formal subject disappears from the curriculum, but functional grammar will be taught in connection with English composition.

"Courses in general science and general mathematics will replace botany and algebra respectively. Geometry, graphs, mensuration, etc., will be added to algebra. General science will consist of botany principally, but will include a little of other sciences, particularly for the winter

CLERGYMAN VISITS STUDENT DAYS FIELD

Rev. H. W. Strapp of Kettleby visited Mrs. James White and friends of student days at Orville, near Parry Sound, on Tuesday. Orville was one of Mr. Strapp's student fields and it was his first visit there in 17 years.

"While the number of cases of infantile paralysis in Toronto and the adjacent municipalities is increasing every day, our town is free of the disease," Dr. J. H. Wesley, M.O.H., stated this week.

"Last Friday the members of the provincial department of health called the local medical officers of the county to a general meeting in the parliament building to consider ways and means of dealing with the present outbreak.

"Already to Aug. 21, there have been double the number of cases that occurred for the same month of 1936. That was when we had the last big epidemic of it. The isolation and Sick Children's hospitals are full, and their staffs are working overtime, which is made necessary by the increasing number of cases.

"The health authorities were compelled to admit it is a strange disease, insofar as it is not proven how it gains access to the body. Neither is there any generally acknowledged treatment. Even the serum of convalescent cases is of questionable value in early cases. Many times when the convalescent serum has been used with apparent success, the diagnosis has not been proved by microscopic examination of the spinal fluid.

"Other scientists are making claims for newer remedies and the same are being tried out in the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, but it will be only after several thousand cases have been successfully treated, that we shall know the real value of the newer remedy.

"A great deal has been claimed for a preventative which is sprayed into the nose of the individual, but this is a new and untried remedy and requires to be skillfully done by a nose and throat specialist, or one skilled in such work, otherwise it must not be attempted. It is essential that the child should be held or anaesthetized while the specialist inserts the nozzle of the atomizer to the delicate cribriform plate in the roof of each nostril, where it comes in very close contact with the brain structure. And, again, this new treatment is experimental, and the work of subjecting a large number of children to it is being carried out by competent men in the hospitals in Toronto as well as in other cities.

"But the promiscuous spraying of children's noses with various nasal sprays was roundly condemned by the health authorities. "The consensus of opinion of the group was that in municipalities where there are cases of the disease, the opening of the primary and secondary schools should be delayed, but that there was no reason against opening of the schools where there were no cases of the disease, and at the same time it was thought that the care of the children was the responsibility of the parents and that they should not be allowed to congregate together, attend the movies, Sunday-schools, swimming pools, or even the Toronto exhibition.

"The Newmarket board of health has engaged the services of Miss Elsie Huntley, a professional nurse, whose duty will be to make a daily check of the pupils of all the primary and secondary schools with regard to the M.O.H. This will mean that the pupils will be safer at school under the supervision of the school nurse and our ever watchful staff of teachers than in their homes or gallivanting all over the province. And for the next few weeks it will be just surprising how many of the parents will be asking advice as to taking their family on a long distance jaunt where there is no school at home."

G. Faris of Bradford. The wedding was a quiet one owing to the illness of the bride's mother. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. Smith of Toronto and Midland.

The house was beautifully decorated with roses, ferns, gladioli and palms. The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a beige lace dress with matching jacket and picture hat, shoes and gloves. She carried tallsmen roses and baby's breath. Joseph McCulley

RETURNS TO SCHOOL

Brimming over with impressions and anecdotes, and doing his best to give an open-minded picture of the European scene, Headmaster Joseph McCulley of Pickering College is home again, back from a tour of half a dozen of the most interesting countries in the world today.

"We spent a week in London and crossed the North Sea to Denmark," Mr. McCulley summarized for The Era. "We spent two days in rural Denmark, three days in Copenhagen, five days in Stockholm and then went through Finland into Russia. We had three days in Leningrad, five days in Moscow, a stopover in Warsaw, five days in Berlin, and went through Cologne into Paris for four days."

"How many were there in your party?"

"Four senior students, two old boys and a University of Toronto S.P.S. graduate."

"What did you like best about your trip?"

"Apart from England, we all liked the Scandinavian countries tremendously. We found the Danes and the Swedes extremely hospitable. The two days in rural Denmark were interesting. We visited one of the latest of the folk high schools. A summer course was in session.

"I was quite surprised to find that they had as fine equipment as they did. It was at Askov, one of the better schools, of course.

"There were nice buildings, simple, a fine gymnasium, lovely assembly hall, recently added, and extensive gardens and grounds.

"We visited an agricultural experimental college in Denmark, experimenting in dairy work. It was just about as complete an institution of its kind as I have ever seen.

"Then Stockholm. The city is perfectly amazing. It is set at the end of a chain of fresh-water lakes, with empty streets into the water. You see the steamers going down the lakes, as well as ocean-going steamers entering the harbor.

"It is as though a big, modern city were placed up in the Lake of Bays district. In point of location, it is the finest thing I have ever seen.

"The country is like northern Ontario, the vegetation and rocks. We looked out of our bus one morning and saw exactly like Muskoka or Algonquin Park. It made us homesick.

"From an economic point of view, the most interesting thing was housing. All kinds of co-operative building plans are being carried into effect. Some of them are apartment houses. Others are little colonies on the outskirts. The modern apartment blocks are striking.

"Finland is a very quiet little country," he went on.

"Are there co-operatives in Finland?"

"Not to the same extent as in Denmark and Sweden. Helsingfors is not large. Noteworthy are a new railway station designed by the architect who built the Cranbrook school in Detroit, and new parliament buildings, which are classical, simple, to the point of austerity."

Mr. McCulley's frank, open-minded picture of those two much discussed countries, Russia and Germany, will be given in The Era next week.

SCHOOL BELLS RING

School opened on Wednesday. At Newmarket high school there was a registration of about 300 students, with 120 in the first year. It is expected that this registration will fall off during the year as positions open up for senior students.

Last year the registration was 300 but 45 students left during the year, with the result that one teacher less was engaged this year.

"We will be able to manage all right," Principal J. B. Basto said, "although the first year will be pretty well crowded."

Sixty-one beginners registered on Wednesday, with more expected, at the public schools, Principal H. A. Jackson stated. The enrolment for the year, on the basis of the end of last year, is estimated at 531, although quite a few students are absent, many of them through fear of infantile paralysis. Many parents are

Dale Eliminates Richmond Hill In Softball Play-Off

Allandale Moundsman Holds
Southerners Down To Four Runs

Allandale defeated Richmond Hill here on Monday evening by the score of 7-4.

The Dale boys surely got to Ted Bennett right off the opening going and at the end of the second inning had pushed across seven runs without a reply from the Hill boys. George Stong took over the mound duties to start the third and from then on the gas boys were stymied.

Meanwhile Arn Reid on the hill for Allandale was very stingy about throwing a decent ball to hit at. Owing to his posing wind-up, Reid had quite a lot of trouble leading the plate.

Usually he had to resort to actually tossing the ball toward the plate and the Hill boys replied by popping little infield flies. Reid was given wonderful support particularly by his three elongated outfielders.

"Blondy" Strachan will be remembered by local fans as the

But the outstanding catch of the evening was turned in by Loughheed in right when in the first inning he jumped high and made a one-handed catch to rob Brown of a home run just as the ball was headed over the fence.

The Hill boys collected four runs in the sixth when the Dale boys made a couple of misplays and these, coupled with three safe bingles, produced the total output in the way of runs. George Stong surely deserved a better fate than he received after the masterful display he turned in.

UTILITIES COMMISSION

Recently Dr. J. H. Wesley, M.O.H., suggested that Newmarket should have a water and light commission or commissioner, as the duties now falling on a committee of the town council are too great to expect a member of the council to handle efficiently in his own time, without remuneration. The Stouffville Tribune, although under the mistaken impression that Newmarket already has a commission, gives an interesting explanation of the make-up and possibilities of a commission. The Tribune's articles follow:

"Canington, Uxbridge, Aurora, Newmarket and Richmond Hill all operate their hydro systems under a commission, but Stouffville so far prefers to manage the affairs of the public utilities (water and light) through the municipal council. Looking back over the history of the water works system, no one can say that it has suffered because there is no commission, as there is in other municipalities, but the day may come when it will be provided to appoint a commission here.

"It will be increasingly difficult as times go on to secure men who will give their time freely to the village in order to adequately conduct the affairs of these two departments which take a great deal of time. Members of the present council hold this view and the day is probably not far distant when a change will be made.

"A public utility commission is made up of three ratepayers, one elected annually by the people of the municipality. Their duty is to direct the affairs of the water and light departments of the place. They have a secretary, paid, just as the council has a paid clerk and treasurer. If the commissioners show good business ability, they are usually left in office a period of years, and because of this they become thoroughly acquainted with the workings of the business under their charge. Only one commissioner may be voted out annually so that there is never a 'green' set in office. In the case of conducting the domestic water system business, under present arrangements councils frequently determine on a policy regarding this or that which takes a number of years to fully carry out. Before completion the councillors change and the new men know nothing about the continuous work decided on, and it is dropped by the wayside. Under a commission more systematic undertakings can be carried out. Commissioners in villages are not paid representatives, although they always have a paid secretary who carries out the direction of the commission.

"If Stouffville ever appoints a public utility commission to handle the water system and hydro-electric the work of the local council would be more than cut in two. Because of this some ratepayers oppose the idea, fearing the duties would be insignificant for anybody to attend to."

ELECTION ISSUES

From asking questions and hearing what we hear, we gather that, even in this supposedly Conservative province, the Hepburn government has a very good chance of being returned to power. Each person thinks for himself, of course, but to our way of thinking the only really ugly blotch on the Hepburn escutcheon is the maladministration of the province's liquor laws. Others will think differently. To our way of thinking the brightest plates in his armor are the collection of past-due succession duties and the institution of a provincial income tax. Others will think differently. Mr. Hepburn thinks that his strongest point is his handling of the Oshawa strike. But is it? No government, either Liberal or Conservative, could permit sit-down strikes in this province. Mr. Hepburn didn't do himself justice when he said at Kincardine on Saturday: "I am going to protect property and civil rights, and if there are any who dispute the position I have taken let them go over to Earl Rowe and his crowd."

Kitchen Talk

Mr. Rowe has not been in office for three years and so there is nothing for which to criticize him. He promises better administration of the liquor laws, and must be given some credit for that. The rest of his program he is unfolding in what is described as "piecemeal" fashion. If it proves appetizing enough, and the public is convinced of Mr. Rowe's ability to serve it up as promised, he may get a turn in the Queen's Park kitchen (Mr. Rowe on Saturday complained that "most of Mr. Hepburn's business is transacted in the back kitchen of the Globe and Mail").

MAIN ST.

The recent discussion of Main St., present and future, might be used in support of an argument for the town manager form of municipal government. If one man were made responsible for the management of the town's affairs, subject to direction from an elected town council, he would feel responsible for the future of the town, as no single member of a town council need feel responsible, and would be under an obligation to present to the council for approval plans which would assure the future development of the town.

Up to the Council

We have a wonderful business town and we may expect to see it a much better town. Our greatest drawback at the present time is our narrow Main St. and we may expect to get away from that gradually as new buildings are erected. Merchants are not very likely to set their buildings back from the street, however, unless there is a by-law requiring all other property-owners to do likewise when it becomes their turn to build. In the course of the recent discussion of Main St. building permits it was discovered that through an accident two buildings had been constructed one or two feet out upon the public property. Nothing can be done about this for the present, but when these buildings are replaced they should of course be moved back, not only the one or two feet but back to whatever new frontage line the council may by by-law set. Incidentally, the council is permitting another owner to build right out to the mistaken line on the public property. This doesn't seem the way to solve our Main St. problem, but it is not reasonable to expect private citizens to take the lead in setting their buildings, new or old, back from the accepted and established lines unless the town council, through a by-law, gives them a guarantee that other owners, when their time comes to build or replace, will have to do likewise.

A Whiff of Leadership

Back in the pre-depression days of the "Maritime Rights" campaign which led to the appointment of the Duncan commission a Nova Scotian university professor said of his compatriots that they needed a "whiff of Mussolini". Nova Scotians wriggled in their chairs and agreed that it mightn't be a bad thing. A town council is a splendid institution to provide an outlet for all points of view concerning a town's affairs, but there are times when the divided leadership of a town council is not strong enough. A "whiff of Mussolini" with one man assuming responsibility and pointing the way to a broader Main St. and a brighter future, might not be a bad thing for us in Newmarket. A town manager, backed by a good town council, such as Newmarket already has, might be a profitable investment.

SCHOOL BELLS

What event is more important than the re-opening of school? We would not like to argue it with a scholar, but the fact is that the first day of school is more important than the last day of school, for it is on the first day of school that we make up our minds whether we are going to be wiser or merely older on the last day of school. More than that, the first day of school is far more typical of life than the last day, for we more frequently undertake new responsibilities than we get rid of old ones.

PREACHING, PRACTISING

An Orillia hardware manufacturing company, whose proprietor was a C. C. F. candidate in the last federal election, has taken out sickness and accident insurance policies for all its men. During working hours the men are covered for accidents by Workmen's Compensation, but the new insurance gives them $40 a month in case of sickness and in case of accidents in non-working hours. The firm hopes to increase this insurance later. Incidentally, this firm has been successful with a profit-sharing plan of bonuses. This would be a splendid world if all defeated candidates for parliament would do in their own business the things which they would advocate in parliament.

AMBASSADOR SHOOTING

No country can allow another to "target-practice" at its ambassador even if his name is Knatchbull-Hugessen, but it does seem like old-fashioned diplomacy, allowing Japan to break her League of Nations pledges without protest and then demanding an apology when the British ambassador happens to be among the thousands of casualties.

AN EDITOR ACCUSED

A reader of the Midland Free Press accuses its editor, in a letter published in the Free Press, of failing to mention "the prominent business men that were fined for not having a radio license." The editor is evidently guilty, for he replies: "Neglecting to take out radio licenses is not a crime against public welfare such as drinking driving." If the editor published the names of all his fellow citizens who failed to pay their taxes promptly, he would be on a hot spot. Then again, these prominent business men may have been advertisers, and advertisers are well-known to be more sensitive than other, ordinary citizens.

Another Complaint

This Midland Free Press letter-writer goes on to say: "It's terrible the number of Midland people that sit in their cars and talk about people going by. In fact some people leave their cars there in the afternoon. Why not stage a campaign against them?" Replies the editor: "We agree that the practice referred to in the second paragraph is most reprehensible. Unfortunately there is no law to prevent people making remarks about other people. If there were and it were enforced, we should have to enlarge our jails." Our sympathy in this instance is with the editor. The letter-writer does not permit his own name to be published, yet he would ask the newspaper management to make a criticism which he dare not make himself.

Help Us Out

While we think of it, there must be plenty of undesirable things going on in Newmarket. We have never noticed anyone sitting in cars making remarks about others, nor have we ever seen them leave their cars on Saturday afternoon in a good place for Saturday evening "remarkings", but we are sure that we Newmarketers must do other equally reprehensible things. We invite our readers through signed letters (signatures to be published) in this newspaper to carry on a campaign against such practices, and to make a bigger and better town. Sometimes editors get tired of being the only fault-finding, faultless, persons in town.

LIVING LONG

If you are interested in living to a great age the best precaution to take is to be born of long-lived parents. Take, for example, Orillia's oldest twins. Brother and sister, they were 88 years old last week. Their parents lived to be only 70 years of age, but on one side of the family their grandfather lived to be 95 and their grandmother 90.

NAMING THE DAY

Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn has "named the day." The day is Wednesday, Oct. 6, Thanksgiving Day will be Monday, Oct. 11. Will we be properly thankful?

RUNNING-BOARD RIDERS

A dangerous practice, recent police court cases would indicate, is to ride on the running-board of a motor-car. At Wilcox Lake recently two girls were standing on the running-board of a car, and one was crushed against a tree and killed.

One of our problems as a town is a route for through traffic. Prospect St. seems to take most of the punishment, but to be ill-suited to the purpose,

The Common Round

By Isabel Inglis Colville

A Tryst With The Past

I can remember as a little child, often hearing an aunt of mine sing "Backward, turn Backward, O Time in your Flight", and wondered in my childish way, what would happen if it did. I thought of time as a great spool, on which the days were woven, and I wondered if God could unwind the spool and let us go back over some of them.

A few days ago, I felt as if I had accomplished the impossible—stepped back a century or more—and the "open sesame" which did the deed, was the ten cent fee, which gave me access to Sharon temple. When I first saw it, 16 years ago, I wondered if in 1921, there were still sun-worshippers to be found in the midst of a Christian people, for it seemed as if, only to the sun-god, whose flashing rays must penetrate to every corner, could such an edifice be raised.

Since then, of course, I have learned of its originator, and the form of religion he practiced, but just in the way things happen, it has never been my lot to enter it, until about a week ago.

We were driving quietly along, when the head of the house suddenly remarked, as if proposing nothing in particular, "let's go and see Sharon temple." "Why not," I agreed, and thereupon we went.

With the crossing of the threshold we stepped into the past, an old savor of past prayer and praise, still hung about the pillared edifice—for none seemed inclined to speak loudly, all was as decorous as if a service were in progress.

What an insight into the struggles of our pioneer forefathers, the contents of that temple reveal, and yet, they also tell a tale of the resourcefulness, courage, and ingenuity without which there could have been no paving the way for the comforts of today.

As we looked at the churn and the sausage grinder, friend husband remarked, "Where, oh where are the germs of yesterday," and I wondered, "Where indeed!" Yes, and I pondered on the question, "are germs a product of civilization and cleanliness, or did people in the past just sort of lump all diseases of unknown origin under 'an act of God,' and feeling comfortably, that no one could dispute it, let it go at that."

The beautiful Paisley shawl, brought back childhood memories, for my grandmother brought an almost identical shawl from Paisley, Scotland, when she came, 120 years ago to this country.

The wooden harrows and the speaking hooks and the oxen yoke, spoke of the many hours which went into the clearing and cultivating of the land, and there were pictures of the men and women, strong-faced and sincere; men who used the implements and weapons on display there, and women who worked with heavy utensils, and yet made things of beauty, as they saw beauty, in the few moments they could glean from more strenuous things.

When we stepped from that temple, from our quiet communing with the past, into the brilliant sunlight of a day in August, 1937, it was with a wish in our hearts, that we might never dishonor the memory of the sturdy band of men and women, who, in the midst of their toil—often with inadequate materials—yet built for the future.

They laid the foundation for the education, religious and secular, for those who followed them. Schools and churches came into being, because they would not be denied. They were fighters, those men and women of olden days—they fought the forest, the climate, the Indians, and their own fears and weaknesses and they emerged—victorious!

The 59th annual Canadian National Exhibition was opened in Toronto last week.

She: Don't harden your heart against me.

He: That's not my heart against you, that's my cigarette case.

The Dominion Textile Company strike in Quebec, involving 10,000 employees, was settled last week. Premier Maurice Duplessis announced.

Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn and Hon. Earl Rowe have begun their campaigns, making speeches in various parts of the province.

The provincial government expects to get $70,000,000 in extra succession duties out of re-opened estates. Premier Hepburn announced last week. He plans to re-open 150 other estates, he stated.

Toronto schools will not open until Sept. 13 because of an infantile paralysis epidemic in the city.

Andrew Mellon, 82 years old, former United States secretary of the treasury, fabulously wealthy, died last Thursday.

A United States tourist sleeping in his car near Beamsville was trussed up and robbed by bandits on Monday. They took $100 in cash, a gold watch and his car, and left him by the side of a lonely road.

Japanese this week maintained a relentless campaign on Chinese in the Shanghai area, making things uncomfortable for thousands of civilians and foreigners.

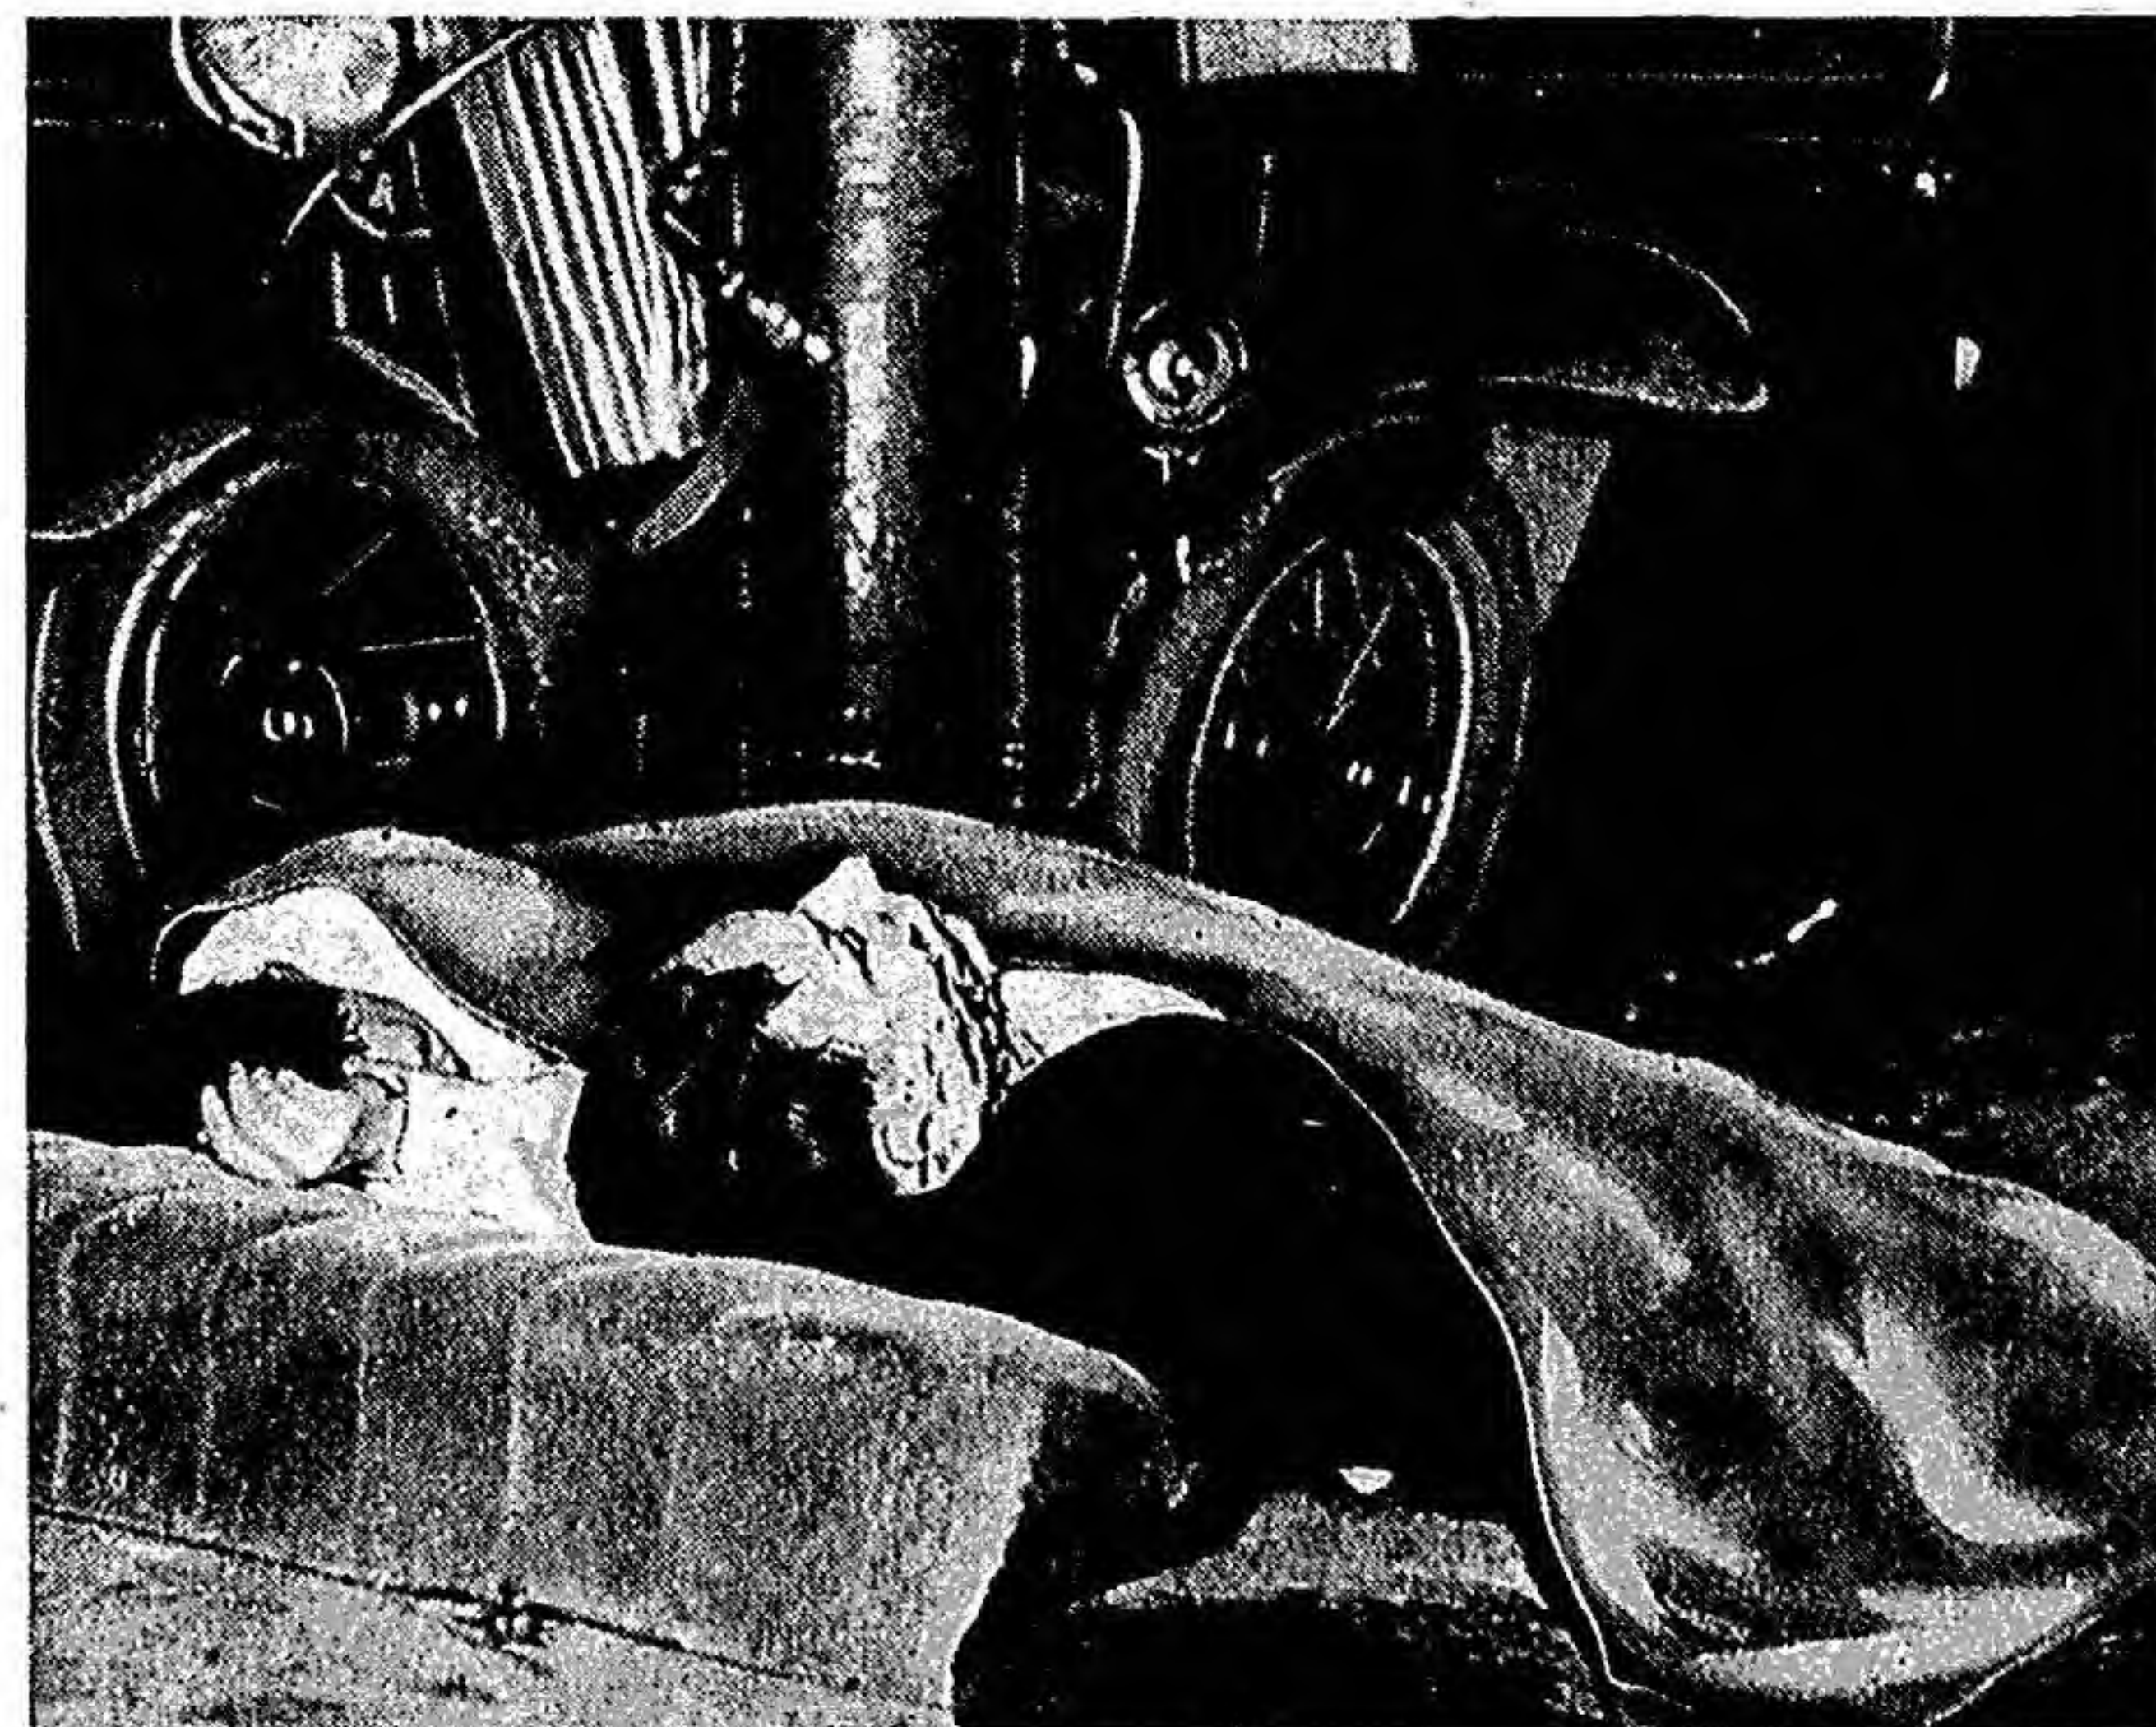

Some folks will tell you that the female of the species is more deadly than the male. But traffic accident records of the highway department don't bear this out by any means. In fatal accidents last year, 94 per cent of the drivers were men; and in non-fatal accidents, 93.3 per cent of the drivers were men. Although these figures do not show that relative number of male and female drivers, it refutes the adage. But regardless of such an old legend, if all drivers, men and women, would make up their minds that highway deaths must stop, there would be mighty few motor accidents.

Morton—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Jesse Morton, who passed away September 4, 1936.

Our Mother
That sweet unspoken gift of love,
Enduring life's full span;
The fullness of a mother's heart,
In God's eternal plan.

The tender hands, the loving care,
That filled our childhood's years;
The gentle songs at evening sung,
That lulled away our fears.

Her tolerance, her simple faith,
Through youth's impetuous reign,
Her silent watchful helpfulness,
Comes back to us again.

And as the shades of darkness creep
Across life's rugged way;
We still can feel our mother's arms
Enveloping us today.

Nor death can stay her tireless faith,
Nor leave us here alone,
For there entreating she will be,
At God's almighty throne.

Sadly missed by her family.

Lee—In loving memory of mother and grandmother, Sarah Ellen Lee, who passed away Sept. 5, 1935.

"Nothing can divide us from Or sever the cords of love. She is resting peacefully with Jesus

In that beautiful home above." Fondly remembered by her daughter, son-in-law and family, Calgary, Alta.

Lee—In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Sarah Ellen Lee, died Sept. 5, 1935.

A day of remembrance sad to recall
The loss of our mother, best friend of all,
One of the best God could send,
A loving mother and a faithful friend.

Two little words not hard to write,
But we will remember them all our life.
Our mother,
Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hollan and daughter, Nellie.

Lee—In loving memory of mother, Sarah Ellen Lee, who passed away Sept. 5, 1935.

"Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far away for thought to reach.

Sweet to remember her who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.

Committee Discusses Water Rates Appeal

Dairy Seeks Revision Of Charges On Large Quantities

DECISION IS POSTPONED

Members of the Aurora town council met as a committee on Monday night to discuss a possible revision in the water rates for large quantities of water. A letter from James Proctor and Redfern was read in which it was stated that Aurora's ten and eight-cent rate was quite low.

"In fact, too low," the letter read. The service charge of large users should be higher, the letter stated.

In 1936, with no capital expenditure, but taking into consideration maintenance cost, power, supervision and depreciation, it cost us 8.16 cents to deliver 1,000 gallons," M. L. Andrews, town clerk, stated.

"Before I came here, I understood the rate was $12 a year," Archie Cousins said. "It now costs us around $250 a year."

He suggested a set charge for service on a certain gallonage, and a rate based on the pumping costs, for the balance of the water used.

"Depreciation is one of our biggest costs," Mayor Dr. C. R. Boulding reminded the meeting. Aurora uses 91,500,000 gallons a year, and pumping costs $100 a month. Cousins said they used 300,500 gallons in July and need the water for cooling purposes.

"I realize that we use a lot of water in the summer, when the supply is lowest," Mr. Cousins said. "The water is good, and I was glad to come to Aurora and get a good drink of water. The water is hard on machinery. The tubes have to be cleaned out three or four times a year, as they clog with lime. Toronto water after chlorination and therefore after."

Councillor Bunn, chairman of the committee which had met to consider the matter previously, suggested that the dairy might be charged 10 cents per thousand for the first 100,000 gallons and 7 cents a thousand for the balance. The present rate is 10 cents per thousand for the first 200,000 and 8 cents a thousand thereafter.

"That would only save us about $15 a year," Mr. Cousins said. "The dairy is an industry for the town, not just a dairy for the town. If we supplied only

PREMIER HEPBURN TO BE PRESENT AT RALLY

Liberals in the district will be given an opportunity to hear their leader on Saturday at 8.30 p.m., D.S.T. Premier M. F. Hepburn and Wm. P. Mulock, M.P., are among those scheduled to address a Liberal rally and nomination meeting to be held in the Richmond Hill arena on Sept. 4.

Aurora we would need just three men. We now have 14 employees here."

Mr. Cousins had got figures on the cost of pumping his own water from the creek. For 1935 he could get equipment that would supply him with 3,000 gallons an hour, a quantity in excess of his needs. The cost would work out, he said, at $110 a year.

"I could pump my own water for about $110 a year," he pointed out. "It now costs about $225 a year to get water from the town. I'd like to pay the town about what it would cost me to pump it myself. The town should be able to pump it cheaper than I could."

"We might have to change other rates, too," Councillor John Stuart objected.

"I don't want anything that others aren't getting," Mr. Cousins said. "I don't want the town to give me anything at a loss."

"The water rate is too cheap," Mr. Stuart said. "We could employ two men for a year on work that needs to be done."

Considering the total amount of water used by Aurorians and the individual cost, Mr. Cousins felt some people must be using a lot of water.

"You're right," Councillor Bunn agreed. "There are such things as water-hogs."

"Where there are girls, there will be a lot of water used," Councillor Stuart said.

"Is that a reflection on the boys?" Mayor Boulding inquired.

"The average user gets 37,000 gallons a year," Councillor Lorne C. Lee stated. "That amounts to about 100 gallons a day."

It was decided to leave the matter in abeyance until the council meeting on Tuesday.

"The committee may want to discuss it further after hearing from Mr. Cousins," the mayor suggested.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at the Mennonite parsonage, Stouffville, when Eva Christina, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos York, Brown Hill, became the bride of William Gordon, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Sedore, Lemonville.

The bride was becomingly gowned in flowered sheer with matching accessories. The bridesmaid, Miss Doris Lillian Sedore, sister of the groom, wore shell pink sheer, with matching accessories. Mr. Charles Byron Green acted as best man.

A very dainty luncheon was served at the bride's parents' home, after which the happy couple left for an aeroplane trip to Detroit, Mich., and points west. They will reside at Lemonville.

MINISTER BACK FROM HOLIDAY

Rev. A. R. Park, minister of the Aurora Baptist church, will return to his pulpit on Sunday and will preach at both services. His brief holiday was taken in anticipation of a more than usually active year, it is said.

Rev. J. T. Kirkwood of Toronto, who has filled the pulpit for the past two weeks, spoke last Sunday evening on the subject, "Our lamps are going out."

Spiritual life as well as physical life weakened and died if steps were not taken to renew it, Rev. Kirkwood stated. "Our life is lit up with hope," he said. "But the light is not so bright at present. Unless we find a closer contact with God, our lamps will go out. It is not God who has failed, but our connection with Him is failing."

"An estimation of mankind," formed the subject for the evening sermon. A man is judged by his deeds, his ideals and his character, he pointed out.

The praise and prayer meeting held on Friday night was splendidly addressed by Mr. Dodson.

Belhaven

The community was saddened by news of the death of Susie Welch, wife of Harry Kahn of Richmond Hill and niece of Wm. Welch. She died as a result of infantile paralysis at the Isolation Hospital, Toronto, on Monday.

Because of quarantine regulations imposed on the rest of the family (except May Sheppard) no one is allowed to go to her home in Richmond Hill at present. She is survived by her husband and two small sons, Richard and Melvin, and her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Welch.

FIND PROBLEM IN MILK NEED

"Milk receipts from one group of farmers have fallen off 25 per cent in the past month," Archie M. Cousins told The Era early this week. "We are still finding it a little difficult to get milk. Many of the Toronto shippers, faced with a lessened demand during the summer months, allow their cows to freshen at that time."

Cousins Dairy has an even brisker trade in summer than in the rest of the year, due to the number of people at the resorts, and Mr. Cousins has a real problem in juggling supply and demand.

"There is no danger of a general milk shortage, though," he explained.

COUNCILLORS FAIL TO PASS AS MILLIONAIRES

In the midst of a discussion on water rates on Monday evening, the door of the council chamber opened and a slim, sun-tanned gentleman asked, "Is this the Millionaires' Club?"

The assembled councillors were too surprised for the moment, to answer, and the gentleman in the doorway, after careful inspection of the group round the table, replied to his own question with, "No, I guess not—it must be upstairs."

Apparently the councillors looked too worried to be mistaken for possessors of great wealth.

No Shopwork For Students At High School This Year

Household Science Class
Also Waits Till '38
Principal Says

"Neither household science nor shop work will be taught here this year," J. H. Knowles, principal of the Aurora high school, told The Era on Saturday. Present plans of the provincial department of education call for the establishment of these classes by September, 1938. It was learned.

"The change is an expensive one," Principal Knowles stated. "It would cost over $1,000 to get the classes started."

In view of the expense and of the possibilities of the department of education modifying its present plans, high schools generally are evidently going slow in forming the new classes, and it is doubtful if many will have classes in these subjects before next year.

Form I of the high school is now being called "grade 9" and

PINE ORCHARD TEETOTALLERS ALSO BLAMED

At Pine Orchard Union Sunday-school the temperance lesson for the quarter was taken by Mrs. Emma M. Starr, who is now superintendent of temperance work for Whitechurch township Sunday-school. In speaking of present conditions she stressed, first, the sin of indifference of the total abstainer from beverage alcohol, to the woeful poverty and misery which that drug is causing to humanity; second, the harmful example and influence of the so-called "moderate drinker"; third, the imperative need for united diligent effort to remove the temptation of alcoholic drinks if our country does not suffer the doom of Ephraim, who through wine and strong drink erred in vision and stumbled in judgment until her glorious beauty became a fading flower.

The Willing Workers meeting has been postponed until Sept. 8 at the home of Mrs. Will Reid. All members are asked to try to be present.

Mr. Robt. Campbell of Toronto, uncle of Mrs. G. McClure, spent a couple of days last week at her home. They also had tea at the home of Mr. L. Harper as Mr. Harper, Sr., and Mr. Campbell are boyhood friends.

Miss Betty Hope spent the weekend with Miss Ruth Arncliffe at Ruth's grandparents' cottage at Lake Simcoe.

Miss Florence Tucker spent Monday at the exhibition in Toronto.

Bloomington

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Jordan of Springfield left for their home after visiting among relatives.

Miss Laura Hill spent the weekend at Peterboro.

Miss Jessie Mahon of Markham is visiting Mr. E. A. Storry.

Quite a number from here attended the funeral of the late Rev. Wm. Norman of Keswick, at the Wesleyan Association held their monthly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Fairies, Ice cream and cake were served.

and dance, at the Benson home, King City, last Wednesday.

BUILDER HAS BUSY SUMMER

"Business has been good this season," J. Bowser of the Aurora Building Company told The Era on Monday. "We have been able to keep between 20 and 25 men employed."

A new home for Mrs. Livingston, remodelling of two homes in King City for W. Hall, a five-car garage for P. M. Thompson, a new entrance for the Aurora public school, and a $13,000 factory repair job, are only a few of the jobs that have kept Mr. Bowser busy this summer.

There has been a good amount of new building going on, as well as a steady volume of repair jobs and remodelling work, he said.

GRAINS SHOW IMPROVEMENT

"Ontario winter wheat sold for 98 cents a bushel at this time last year is bringing $1.10 on the market this year," G. W. Baldwin of the Aurora Flour Mills stated in answer to The Era's inquiry on Monday. "On July 26, 1936, the price was 85 cents, compared with $1.22 at the same time this year."

"Wheat has been good," he said. "Oats are light, and barley has not been too heavy yet. On the whole, farmers will get a much better return for their work than that received last year."

Grandmother Makes Gift of 11 Quilts

Presenting each of her 14 grandchildren with quilts made by her own hands, Mrs. M. F. Starr, of the fourth concession of Whitechurch, celebrated her 80th birthday on Saturday. Nearly 100 relatives and friends called to congratulate her.

Mrs. Starr has lived in the district all her life, her present home being one and one-quarter miles from her birthplace.

other "forms" will be known also as "grades," the principal intimated. Subjects for grade 9 this year include English, social studies (history and geography), health, education, writing, mathematics, general science, French, business practice, music and art.

"There are no changes in the staff this year," Principal Knowles concluded.

KING TOWNSHIP SAY AUDITORS RETAIN TAXES

"Unless we receive their (Messrs. Bashforth & Co., auditors) cheque for $40.48 by September 15, this council will place the same in our solicitor's hands for collection and they can govern themselves accordingly ($40.48 being taxes paid in to them)," was the wording of a resolution passed by King township council at Kettleby on Saturday.

Miss Eileen Ferguson was appointed clerk for the meeting. Harold Rose was appointed clerk pro tem until his bonds come into force, on the motion of Councillors L. B. Goodfellow and C. E. Warkington.

The tax collector, Charles Ross, was relieved from collecting further dog taxes for 1935 and 1936.

The bill of G. W. Williams for $10 with regard to a dog for whom the township was responsible was paid on the usual 50 per cent basis.

The month's hospital account of $54 was paid to the county.

A bill from the Isolation hospital, Toronto, for children from the McGoeys settlement was referred to Father McGoeys, as he had given an undertaking to look after such items.

The road superintendent was instructed to have the washout on the fifth line repaired, the bump on the McLean culvert repaired, bumps and culverts repaired on the Marshall side-road between the fifth and sixth concessions and necessary repairs to other roads made, on motion of Councillors E. M. Legge and Thomas MacMurtrei.

A cheque for $50 was issued to Charles Ross in balance of his salary for the year. Relief amounted to $1,007.45. A road voucher for $300.10 was passed.

Accounts passed included: Robt. Foster, $0.50; Frank M. Bayne, $27.00; Geo. Storey, $39.02; E. G. Lloyd, stamps, $3; J. P. Jefferson, telephone calls, $4.51; P. M. Thompson, wreath, $3.20; Gus. Farquhar, services to lock-up, $1.35; Sam Pankhurst, cemetery work, $3.50; Mrs. A. Forth, $35; provincial department of health, insulin, $4.10; Arthur Wellesley, weeds, $7.30; A. McCullum, services, $8.25; Mrs. J. Harmon, milk and telephone, $5; Chas. H. Ross, services and mileage, $10; Lorne Lee, $20.

ABOUT TOWN

ABOUT US

Is your eyebrow raised? We were afraid it might be. For the past few days we've been dashing up and down Aurora streets, flitting in and out of Aurora homes, gasping for a breath of Aurora air—frantically striving to give you a full coverage of Aurora news.

And now we're sitting down and worrying about Aurora eyebrows. Our trouble is that we've too much imagination... we're haunted by the vision of hundreds and hundreds of Aurora's citizenry, opening their first copy of The Aurora Era, raising their eyebrows and perplexedly murmuring—"why?"

In an attempt to get those hundreds of eyebrows back to their proper positions, we will explain the "why" of The Aurora Era: The primary purpose of a newspaper is to publish news—news of people, places and merchants. That is the purpose of The Aurora Era. To our present readers in Aurora and Newmarket and their respective districts, we offer a better coverage of Aurora news than we have been able to give them before.

Our new readers in Aurora will find herein every bit of Aurora news we've been able to get our teeth into. This coverage will improve from week to week, as more Aurora news channels are developed.

In addition to your Aurora news you will find news of your uncle in Newmarket, your Kewwick cousins, your Mount Albert mother-in-law, your Sutton sister, and your friends in Queensville, Sharon, Kettleby, Pine Orchard, King and... well, look over the paper and see for yourself. You'll find in it the largest news coverage of any weekly newspaper in the county.

And if there's anything we've missed, or anything you think we may miss, drop a note to The Aurora Era, Aurora, and we'll find it at the post office. Many thanks.

About Bonfires

Sauntering down Kennedy St. the other night, disguised as a gentleman with very little to do, we came upon a bonfire. It was a fully equipped bonfire, complete with coffee, edibles, ukuleles and songs.

It made us philosophical—in a mild sort of way. Here, we pondered, were people enjoying in their own backyard, what city folk usually travel miles to enjoy. Here, we pondered further, were people enjoying something in common—a weiner, a fire and a song. Here, we concluded, was life as it should be.

So it made us a trifle peevish, when, on reaching Yonge St., we overheard a conversation in which several young chaps plaintively drawled, "Gee, I wish there was a little life in this town."

It's not always the town that lacks life—sometimes it's the people who complain about that lack. Some of us would yawn if we were allowed to see the Charge of the Light Brigade—with its original cast.

About Babies

"Though children are born somewhere, every day, and others, similarly located, daily pass away, the twin miracles of life and death remain consistent in their news appeal."

It is our duty, therefore, to write of them. We ran into a snag this week, however, when we sought news of births in this community. For Aurora babies, paradoxically, are often born in Newmarket.

The reason, of course, lies in the location of the York County Hospital in that town. We're not kidding, but it does seem a little odd that we should have to ask someone in Newmarket if any children have been born in Aurora... we mean that it's odd to have to ask if any Aurora children have been born in Newmarket... that is to say, oh, well, skip it—we're getting mixed up again. Anyway, we hope both are doing well.

About Grown-Ups

Most people have quite enough trouble—without being bothered by reporters. It's bad enough to break a leg, without having someone, pencil in hand, wanting to know why you broke it. We sympathize with the victim of an auto collision who replied to the query, "Have an accident, mister?" with the statement, "No thanks—I've just had one."

So when we began to poke our battered nose into Aurora's business, we didn't expect to be greeted with cheers. And we weren't.

We were, however, greeted with hand-shakes. A number of kindly souls have sought to guide our news-gathering feet along the right path. Through their courtesy, we have been privileged to meet many more of the village than would otherwise have been our pleasure.

We've recovered sufficiently by now from our befuddled state of surprise to be able to express our gratitude. To those who have made us feel more at home in the churches, in the council chambers, in the stores and along the streets—our sincere thanks. We hope you won't be sorry.

—J. F. W.

Aid Given Boys' Band By Dance And Parade

Firemen Will Entertain
To Assist Young
Musicians

GIRL'S BAND TO PLAY

Plans for the 'big brother' boost to be given the recently formed Aurora Boys' Band by the Fire Brigade next Thursday are all but completed. The Era learned from Charles Griffith, brigade secretary, this week.

"The parade, which will line up at the town park at 7.15 p.m., will include decorated cars," Mr. Griffith stated. "It is hoped to have cars from Newmarket taking part in the parade, too."

"Prizes will be given for the best decorated bikes, tricycles, doll carriages and wagons, as well as for the cars," he said. Music for the dancing, which begins on Yonge St. at 9 p.m., will be furnished by an "all-girl" band under the leadership of Tris Clark.

"The Aurora Boys' Band, for whose benefit the parade and dance are being held, has shown remarkable progress since its beginning a few months ago."

P. M. Thompson, keenly and actively interested in the formation of the organization, is loud in his praise of the band's leader, Robert Moore, formerly of the Grenadiers' band in Toronto.

Under his capable instruction approximately 30 enthusiastic youngsters are being welded into a fine musical unit.

A real effort was being made to make the band a wholesome influence on the boys, Mr. Thompson said. Several instruments cost more than the boys could afford in spite of the economy in their purchasing, and proceeds from the street dance and parade are therefore being donated to the band for this purpose, and to help pay tuition costs.

Reasoning Powers Are God-Given, Congregation Told

"Any theory that Christ is coming to rule in person is a wrong idea," Rev. Byron Snell told the congregation of Aurora United church on Sunday morning.

Answering the question which formed the subject of his sermon, "Where is God?" Rev. Mr. Snell said, "He dwells in man. There is an essential unity between God and man. They ought not to be divided. God has made it possible that we may think his thoughts."

"The power of thought is a wonderful thing. Reasoning powers are as much God-given as are spiritual desires; so is our sense of justice. It is a serious thing for Christians not to be stirred by wrong."

"It would add dignity to our daily tasks if we felt we were working 'with God,'" he stated. "We are here to see that there is no more war. It is our task and God has given us that task."

The idea that God dwells apart from material things is wrong, the minister said. There was no need for some supernatural means of communication, as was thought by the Indian fakir, he stated.

"I have the greatest respect for the Roman Catholic church," he continued. "They are among the first with missionaries into new lands. They take care of their sick and their old. But they have this idea that God is removed from man."

Decrying the practice of praying through an intermediary, the minister said, "It's a round-about way to God. Here any man can come into the presence of God. We can plead our own case and state it ourselves." The Lord hears and answers prayer.

Case Of Paralysis Turns Out To Be Rumor, M.O.H. Learns

No Victims Of Dreaded Disease Yet Found In Aurora

"There are no cases of infantile paralysis in Aurora," Dr. W. J. Stevenson, medical officer of health, stated on Monday. "There was one case rumored, but on investigation it turned out to be only gossip," he said.

"There are no cases in Aurora," he stated definitely. "It is simply a matter of prevention being better than cure."

"There are a few cases in the Catholic settlement three or four miles west of Aurora," Dr. Stevenson said. "And some in Ballantrae and Richmond Hill. Evidently it was felt there was a danger in students travelling back and forth to high school."

Opening of the public and high schools will be postponed for a week or two.

Asked if he had any advice for Aurora youngsters, Dr. Stevenson pointed to a small clipping beginning, "Stay in your own back yard."

"The onset of the disease is usually sudden," he stated. "A rapidly rising temperature, headache, irritability, then disturbed sleep and a willingness to stay in bed, drowsiness and vomiting are symptoms of the disease. Sore muscles, pains in the joints and stiffness in the spine are also characteristic."

"The afflicted child is unable, while sitting up in bed, to bend his head forward and down to touch his knees," he concluded.

There was little danger for a child in a well-ventilated schoolroom, the doctor felt, though children would be well advised to avoid such activities as would bring them into close physical contact with each other.

need for some supernatural means of communication, as was thought by the Indian fakir, he stated.

"I have the greatest respect for the Roman Catholic church," he continued. "They are among the first with missionaries into new lands. They take care of their sick and their old. But they have this idea that God is removed from man."

Ontario's Man of Action

RETURN HEPBURN AS PREMIER

OLD MAN ONTARIO speaks for the great mass of our citizens when he says, "Thank you, Mitch".

Only too well he remembers the sorry plight into which bad government had brought this great province three years ago. Spendthrift politicians were dragging us deeper and deeper into debt. Their millionaire friends were being allowed to fleece the public treasury. Every department of the public services was honeycombed with an army of hangers-on.

It was then the people turned to Hepburn in the hope he could and would carry out the promises he made. Perhaps skeptics may have attributed some of his promises to youthful enthusiasm—but Hepburn kept his word—he's Ontario's Man of Action.

Today Honourable Mitchell F. Hepburn submits the most successful record any Ontario Prime Minister ever presented before the bar of public opinion.

Hepburn Earns the Gratitude of the Electorate

HE has earned the thanks of practically every man, woman and child in the province.

Wealthy beneficiaries of estates which had been allowed to mulct the province to the tune of 22 million dollars will not thank him for recovering that huge sum—but nearly everybody else will.

Timber profiteers rue the day on which Hepburn came to Queen's Park—but the people of the North rejoice when they see large new industries springing up and old ones reviving. They join Old Man Ontario in his enthusiasm for the ending of unemployment in the timber area and for turning George Henry's deficits into surpluses.

"Big Business" may not be singing Hepburn's praises—but the common people appreciate the fact that he saved them millions in interest rates.

Hepburn Saves Hydro

IF the Quebec power barons had a vote in Ontario, it would certainly not go to Hepburn—but Ontario knows that the Government's Hydro policy not only saved this great enterprise from ruin, but that it has already saved over four million dollars to Hydro users, and the new contracts will eventually effect total savings to the province of over six million dollars a year.

Profiteers from the liquor toll gate that Hepburn promised to abolish will not be on his side—but the people approve his prohibition of the sale of liquor in restaurants which the Henry Government would have permitted.

Hepburn Proves to be The Tax-Payer's Friend

THAT "Thank you, Mitch" covers a wide range of public services, all administered with an efficiency and economy hitherto unknown.

It says:

"Thanks" for the lessening of municipal burdens—that will on the tax rate, the increase in township road subsidies, the assumption and increase of Mothers' Allowances and the assumption of Old Age Pensions.

"Thanks" for the abolition of the amusement tax.

"Thanks" for preventing the exploitation of labour by riotous aliens.

"Thanks" for the advanced labour legislation, such as— industrial standard codes, extending minimum wage laws to men, and setting up a tribunal to ensure a square deal to employees and employers. This new Industry and Labour Board has already justified its creation by effecting settlements in several disputes of long standing.

"Thanks" for the modernizing and extension of our highways, and for promoting tourist trade on a greater scale than ever before.

"Thanks" for the improvement in the preventive measures for the health of the people, and for the better care of the sick— physical and mental.

"Thanks" for the progress of education in Ontario, and for assuming the costs of examination fees.

"Thanks" for the advancement of every Department within the jurisdiction of a Provincial Government.

Symbol of a grateful people, Old Man Ontario speaks for the great mass of our citizens when he says, "Carry On, Hepburn".

Those Who Are Entitled To Vote

Every British subject, 21 years of age, and resident in Ontario since October 6, 1936, is entitled to vote at the forthcoming election—but the name must be on the voters' list.

A vote for the Liberal candidate on October 6th is the practical way the Ontario elector can join in the mandate, "CARRY ON, HEPBURN".

TREASURE HUNT

—By Barbara Webb

SYNOPSIS

Belinda Louise (Lindy Lou) Hillcrest received a letter in New York telling her of treasure hidden at Twinoaks her former home in the south. She confided the news to handsome Anton Homans, who laughed at it and forbade her going to search for the treasure. He asked Lindy Lou to marry him and the day after they became engaged left on a long sales trip. Now Lindy Lou is at Twinoaks. Arrived there, she renewed friendship with young Lee Beverly, who farms the Beeches, the adjoining plantation. Lee objected to Lindy Lou's staying alone at Twinoaks and she promised to spend the night in the village, after Lee showed her evidence of prowlers around the place. But instead of going, Lindy Lou found what she believed to be a true clue and stayed until after nightfall. Hearing footsteps upstairs, she went to explore, was seized and thrust into an empty room under lock and key.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

The Penalty Of Disobedience
Lindy Lou's terror had lessened a little as the noise from downstairs ceased. But a far more nerve-racking one began. Tap, tap, tap along the walls. The taps seemed to come from every direction. Lindy Lou told herself it was simply the same prowler sounding the walls. But here all the gruesome stories of the supernatural that Ellen Marie had told her the night before rushed back into her memory. Tap, tap, tap. Shuffle, slide, creep. Lindy Lou felt she was going out of her mind. An icy sweat broke out on her face and in the palms of her hands.

Suddenly Lindy Lou began to sing. Her voice quavered at first, but she kept valiantly on. "Rock of Ages," sang Lindy Lou. The tapping ceased, and Lindy Lou sang the louder. "Dixie Land," and Lindy Lou shouted the words. Between songs she paused. There were no further sounds in the house. Plainly her singing disturbed the burglar and Lindy Lou kept it up. She sang hymns and mountain songs remembered from her childhood. She sang popular songs, the silly words of "Boop-boop-a-doo" and the mournful "I'm Through With Love" echoing strangely enough through that deserted house.

She must have kept at it steadily for an hour, never repeating herself, singing until her throat hurt, but able to think of no other way in which she could keep up any semblance of courage. Finally her voice grew hoarser and hoarser and at last she could only whisper. She paused to listen again. Silence so deep and still that it seemed to Lindy Lou she could see it hanging over her like a curtain.

And now the very stillness bothered her. She felt she would be glad to hear the tapping again. At least that indicated that some fellow human being was about. She shook again with cold and misery. Her throat hurt and her stomach reminded her that she had had nothing to eat since noon. She was thirsty and cold and hungry and scared.

"Oh, I wish daylight would come," sobbed Lindy Lou, beginning to cry for the first time during that fearful night. "I wish some one would come—any one, any one at all."
She seemed to float off then into a series of troubled dreams. Anton appeared in them; but, instead of helping her, he laughed at her; and, when she held out her hands to him, he drifted backward farther and farther away. Ellen Marie appeared, gowned in a long white nightgown, and, wringing her hands and moaning, pointing with a bony forefinger in some ghastly warning. Lindy Lou's father and mother showed themselves with sorrowful faces, and Joe, grinning and grinning in the way he had when he wanted to tease her. Miss Tanner and girls from the office, all laughing and pointing at her—not one friendly face in the long gallery of Lindy Lou's nightmare.

Presently she straightened herself and turned on her face, unconsciously assuming an easier position, relaxing, with one hand under cheek on the bare floor. Exhausted, she slept more deeply and her dreams became pleasant.

She dreamed of Lee's old white horse Traveler. She and Lee were riding together on his bare back. They went through a dark, gloomy forest, but they came out into bright, friendly sunshine. Lee sang a mountain song and Lindy Lou reached up and plucked luscious, cooling fruit from the trees. Birds sang around them, and Lindy Lou sighed happily in her sleep.

Finally, the dreams ceased entirely and Lindy Lou mercifully slept the deep, dreamless slumber of the tired and weary. Daylight showed in the yard, but in that shuttered room upstairs Lindy Lou slept on. The sun began to climb the sky, but still she did not wake.

Then, in at the gate post-haste rode a young man on a white horse. Without waiting to throw the reins over the gate-post, he jumped to the ground and ran in through the open front door.

"Lindy Lou! Lindy Lou!" he called, frantically.

Upstairs in that darkened room Lindy Lou heard him, smiled, but did not wake. She just whispered his name: "Yes, Lee; yes, Lee."

He did not hear her. Like one possessed he was dashing through the rooms, calling wildly, his heart nearly bursting with fear. At last he reached the room where Lindy Lou lay. He threw open the door and saw her there, in a heap by the window. Two strides and he was kneeling by her side.

"Lindy Lou! Lindy Lou! Wake up! Are you hurt? Oh! Lindy Lou, please open your eyes."

Lindy Lou opened her eyes, saw Lee, groaned and tried to sit up. But her body, stiff from sleeping on bare boards, bruised by her fall and sore from the work she had done the night before, protested, and she sank back again.

"I'm all right," she managed to falter; "just stiff. I'm all right."

"But, Lindy Lou, what happened?"

"He locked me in this room."

Lee stared at her. "The door wasn't locked. Lindy Lou. There isn't even any key in the lock. I opened the door and came right in."

"He took the key away, then. I tell you, Lee, he locked me in."

Lindy Lou's voice died away to a whisper. "I'm so thirsty," she whimpered, "and my head hurts."

With an exclamation, Lee picked her up and carried her down the stairs. He stood hesitating a moment, his burden resting quietly in his arms. Then he carried her out into the morning sunshine and laid her down gently on the grass by the side of the well. He brought water which Lindy Lou drank greedily, then bathed her face and hands while she lay listlessly accepting these services. He left her and ran into the kitchen, where he found some cold coffee in the pot on the stove. He came back with it, strong and black and bitter.

"Drink this," he commanded. "It isn't hot; but it will help you."

Lindy Lou obeyed and presently felt new life stealing along her arms and legs. She sat up with a groan and managed to smile at Lee. In the daylight her fears of the night before seemed monstrous and unbelievable.

"Can you tell me what happened now? Don't talk unless you're strong enough." His face was so concerned that Lindy Lou laughed and the laugh seemed to reassure him.

"I admit, Lee, that I was a plain darn fool," Lindy Lou began, placing her hands on her throat, which still hurt. And then she told him what had happened up to the time of her being locked in the room.

Lee's face darkened. "I'd like to get my hands on him," he growled. "But what did you do all night, Lindy Lou?"

Lindy Lou's dimples showed.

"I sang!"

"I sang? Every song I knew. And I think it must have scared him, for it was about then that the noises stopped and he must have gone away, after unlocking the door, so I could get out if I wanted to. Yes, sir, I sang every song I've heard since I was 3 years old."

Lee threw back his head and laughed. "I'll say you're spunky. But anybody coming along the road would have thought your house haunted, sure enough."

"Do ghosts sing 'boop-boop-a-doo'?" Lindy Lou inquired demurely.

Lee laughed again. "Crazy kid," he said, but there was approval in his tone.

Lindy Lou looked at him curiously. "How did you happen to come for me?" she asked.

"I stayed late at that horse sale at Dalton and rode home another way; didn't go past this place at all. I just took it for granted that you had gone to the Jacksons. Then this morning I called up there to offer to come in and get you in my car if you were coming out to Twinoaks. Mrs. Jackson said you hadn't come in, but Johnson, the postman, had told her some kind of garbled story about how you were going to sleep at the Beeches, so she hadn't worried. Of course, I knew at once that you had stayed here and I galloped over to give you the bawling out of your young life. When I got here and couldn't find a sign of you, well, I was pretty scared. And when I saw you lying all of a heap up there, I thought—"

He paused and stared straight ahead. It would never do to tell Lindy Lou what he had thought in that dreadful moment.

"I'll bet I look a sight," said Lindy Lou.

"You do. Now see here, you go in and wash yourself as well as you can, and eat an apple and a piece of bread and butter. I'll go back and get my tin brazier and take you into Mrs. Jackson's and you'd better have a hot bath and get some sleep and a real meal."

"What will I tell her?" Lindy Lou asked.

Lee considered. "Tell her the modified truth. Tell her you got locked in a room and couldn't get out. You needn't say some one locked you in. Just let her

Johnny Asks Some Questions

"That young Veery who lives over in the woods tells me that he is leaving for the south to-night," announced Johnny Chickadee to his family. "Isn't it rather early?"

"Well, this is September now you know, the great travelling month for the birds," replied Chips. "The Veery does migrate early but there are thousands and thousands of birds on the move this month."

"Why don't we go south?" asked Johnny. "Everyone else does."

"Why, what nonsense!" exclaimed Cora. "Lots of birds are like us and choose the hardships of the Canadian winter, to the south. It's so much braver and more worthwhile to weather the winds and snows in Canada than to go and fatten in the south. The Chickadees, the Nuthatches and the Downy and Hairy Woodpeckers and lots of other birds don't go south."

"The migrants may get fat in the south but if they do they get thin again on the trip back here," put in Chips. "Personally, I don't think it's worth the effort. We've always been quite happy here and have been able to stand the winter."

"How on earth will they ever find their way all the way down to Central America," asked Johnny. "That's where the Veery said he was going."

"They follow the older men-folk," explained Chips. "The old males of every species always lead the way and the women and children follow."

"And how do the others know the way?" persisted Johnny.

"They were taught the way by their fathers and they remember it," said Chips. "They follow certain definite air highways and they have landmarks that they go by. Of course, they have a perfectly marvellous sense of direction to help them."

"That's probably the main reason that they fly so high up," Cora told her curious son. "They can see the countryside and pick out their route better. They often fly a half a mile above the earth and sometimes even higher than that. Except on a dark night of course and then they fly much lower, groping their way above the tree tops."

"They have a lovely flight when it's moonlight," said Chips, "but it's tough and dangerous going on a dark misty night. Lots of them get lost and scattered. An old veteran Red-winged Blackbird was telling me today about a terrible trip he was on back in '34. There were 200 in the party and they ran into heavy fog one night. They struggled along and when dawn came and they stopped to get some food and rest there were only 100 of them left. They thought that a lot of them were drowned in the river. They were travelling over a big river. Travelling birds usually follow river courses, you know. Sometimes they follow the coastline, but they always have some general course such as a big river or a coast."

"Why don't they fly in the daytime?" asked Johnny. "Then they would be able to see. I should think."

"Because they have to use the daytime hours to find food," his mother answered. "They wouldn't be able to see their food at night. So in the daytime they rest and sleep and eat and loaf along in a southerly direction and at night they really travel."

"That is not true of all the birds," added Chips. "The birds that get their food on the wing don't have to travel at night because they can catch flies and insects as they go along and don't have to stop, specially for feeding. Our friends, the Swallows and the Chimney Swifts and the Nighthawks, do this. They migrate by daylight."

"Well, I guess we've saved a lot of trouble and danger by staying right here," decided Johnny.

"Yes, but that doesn't mean that there are no dangers for us here," interposed Cora. "The autumn is the time that the Hawks are around this part of the country on their way from farther north, and we've got to be awfully careful."

take it for granted there was a spring lock on one of the doors. That will account for your being pretty wild looking—having had to spend a night alone in the house. I'll go over and get the car now, Lindy Lou. You aren't afraid to stay here for ten minutes alone? It won't take me any longer than that."

Lindy Lou shook her head. "Nope. I'll sing again if I get scared."

Lee laughed, mounted Traveler and rode away. Lindy Lou watched him. Queer that he had never suggested her going to the Beeches. She recalled the strict proprieties of her childhood, conventions that still obtain in many small towns all over the country, but particularly in the south. Lee wouldn't ask her to the Beeches because he had no woman relative there. He knew—and Lindy Lou knew, too—that nothing would set tongues wagging like her going unchaperoned to his house. Perhaps some day he would ask her and Mrs. Jackson out there. Lindy Lou would like to see it again, she had played there often enough as a child.

Lindy Lou had difficulty climbing beside Lee and she winced more than once on that jolting ride to the village. Just before they reached Mrs. Jackson's Lee spoke to her rather sternly.

"I suppose you've learned your lesson," he said.

"Yes," said Lindy Lou meekly. "I won't stay there after dark again. I can promise you that. But do you know, Lee, that the chief feeling I have about last night is that it makes me plumb mad. Somebody else is after that treasure and somehow or other I'm going to find it first."

"I wish you'd show me your map and let me help you," Lee offered.

But Lindy Lou shook her head. "I suppose you'd call it superstition," she said, "but I just feel it in my bones that I've got to find that treasure all by myself."

Lee nodded. "I think I understand," he said, and Lindy Lou thought he probably did.

They drew up before a low white house with a front porch rather close to the street.

"There they are," said Lee, pointing to the porch.

"Who?" asked Lindy Lou startled.

Lee grinned. "The rocking chair brigade. Draw a long breath, honey, and plunge in, they're waiting for you."

Lindy Lou gasped. Seven rocking chairs had stopped rocking and seven occupants were leaning forward tensely, engaged in the dramatic arrival of Lindy Lou and Lee Beverly. In the doorway Mrs. Jackson stood, adjusting her spectacles before she came down the walk to welcome her new boarders.

"In spite of that, I like the autumn," said Chips. "There's such a wonderful food supply—so many insects and seeds and fruit and things that the birds like. Of course the animals, squirrels and mice and chipmunks are very busy gathering in the harvest, too."

"September is the moulting month, though," said Cora, "and I don't like that. It's our most unattractive season and I always like to look my best."

"You shouldn't be so vain, my dear," said Chips. "We Chickadees really never look downy, not even in the winter. What would you do if you were a Goldfinch and lost most of your lovely golden coat every fall and had to go around for half the year looking like the ghost of your former self. We should count our blessings."

"Yes, I suppose we should," agreed Cora, "especially at harvest time."

No Tact

"I wish you'd show a little more tact," said the restaurant manager to the leader of the orchestra. "Here we've got the Imperial Society of Umbrella and Raincoat Manufacturers having dinner, and you go and play 'It Ain't Gonna Rain No More.'"

SHE WAS X-RAYED 12 TIMES

Tried Electric Treatment for Rheumatism

To suffer for five years with pains in the back... to be X-rayed 12 times... to undergo electric treatment for three years... and then to find that Kruschen was what she really needed to get relief—that was this woman's experience.

"Five years ago, I was taken ill with pains in my back. After three weeks in bed I was sent to hospital. At first, spine trouble was suspected, but after 12 X-rays I was found to have serious lumbar rheumatism. For over three years, I was given electrical treatment three times a week. Last year, I tried Kruschen Salts, and it has done wonders. I have discontinued hospital treatment, and last winter the first for five years, I was free from pain. My friends are amazed to see me so well." (Mrs.) E.P.

In a good many cases, rheumatism cannot resist the action of Kruschen Salts, which dissolve the painful crystals of uric acid—often the cause of those aches and pains—and assist the kidneys to eliminate this poison through the natural channels.

TELEPHONE TALKS IN THE WATSON FAMILY

"What would we do without the TELEPHONE?"

Sally Watson turned to her Mother. "Whatever would we do without a telephone?" she asked. She had just finished making arrangements for the evening with the over-faithful Jack.

Mother smiled as Sally raced upstairs to get ready, realizing how much the telephone had smoothed the day for all the family.

Do your children have to admit to their friends, "We have no telephone"? It's hardly necessary when the cost is so low—actually, only a few cents a day!

POLICE COURT CRASHES INTO TREE, IS FINED

Pleading guilty to driving a car with two persons on the running-board, David Heller was fined $10 and costs in police court here on Tuesday morning. Constable Jack Williamson of Whitechurch township testified in the case.

"In so many of these cases people are injured and frequently killed," said Magistrate L. J. C. Bull. He gave Heller a week to pay.

Jack Archibald, King township, was remanded for a week on a charge of unlawfully keeping liquor for sale. His counsel had witnesses present, who, he stated, were going away on holidays, and asked that the case be heard.

The crown, represented by N. L. Mathews, K.C., stated that there were four constables in the case who could not be present. In addition, Chief William Martin-dale and Constables Anthony Crouth and William Hill, who were present, were also concerned in the case.

Charged with reckless driving when he crossed against a red light at Eagle and Yonge Sts. and crashed into another car, James Wilson, Waterdown, was fined $5 for crossing against a red light.

The driver of the other car, Roy Allen, said that he was "driving west on Eagle St., turning south on Yonge St. The green light was with me. Wilson was going north and drove his car into mine, against the red light. He was near the west side of the street."

"Why near the west side?" queried N. L. Mathews, K.C.

Mr. Allen said that he was accompanied by Miss Eva Wilson of Newmarket, who had been badly bruised. His car was so badly damaged that an insurance company was going to get him another one.

It was a 1920 car and he, as well as Miss Wilson, would be fully recompensed, Mr. Allen stated in reply to questions from Hughes Cleaver, M.P., Burlington, counsel for the defence.

Thomas Cook, service station proprietor, was an eye-witness of the accident. He picked a man up thrown out on the street but he was unhurt. Mr. Wilson's car passed three other cars stopped for the red light.

"You have a very attractive service station?" said Mr. Cleaver.

"Thank you," replied Mr. Cook.

"A stranger might think that the three cars were stopped for service?" said Mr. Cleaver.

"No, they were on the highway," said Mr. Cook.

Provincial Constable A. O. Ferguson said that he was called to the accident and that there was a 53-foot skid mark.

"I have had no accident of any kind in 18 years of driving," said Mr. Wilson. "I have never been fined. I am accustomed to the lights at the centre of the intersections in Hamilton. I did not see the stop-light. In our part of the country there are no lights on the open highways."

John Miller, a passenger with Mr. Wilson, said that he had not seen the stop-light either.

Mr. Cleaver asked that Mr. Wilson be convicted of passing a stop-light so that his license would not be cancelled.

Mr. Mathews asked that he be convicted on the reckless driving charge but that his permit be not cancelled.

"It is unusual to get such cooperation from both crown and defence in getting at the facts," said Magistrate Bull. "I'm not surprised, in view of the Hamilton lights, that he did not see the light here."

The magistrate fined him $5 and costs for passing a stop-light. Declaring that he believed the constable's story but that he would give the accused the benefit of the doubt, Magistrate Bull dismissed a charge against Fred Hiback of driving a car with six children on the running-board.

Constable Jack Williamson said that he saw the car in motion. Hiback said that the children had run out from the cottage, greet him and tell him that his wife was ill, and that he had stopped the car and that they got off the running-board before he moved the car.

A companion verified this story and said: "I felt very embarrassed when the officer asked if Hiback were a Jew."
